

“Witches hear the immortal whispers of those who pass between the worlds. They speak of a child who is destined to bring an end to destiny. If told what she must do, she will fail...but she won’t walk alone. There is a boy whose fate is bound with hers. Together, they will change everything.”

Read the extract above. What phrase suggests the prophecy has been spoken quietly but never died? Use PEE to help you explain your answer.

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

“Witches hear the immortal whispers of those who pass between the worlds. They speak of a child who is destined to bring an end to destiny. If told what she must do, she will fail...but she won’t walk alone. There is a boy whose fate is bound with hers. Together, they will change everything.”

What sentence in the prophecy tells you that the boy and the girl have the same destiny? Use PEE to help you answer

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

“Witches hear the immortal whispers of those who pass between the worlds. They speak of a child who is destined to bring an end to destiny. If told what she must do, she will fail...but she won’t walk alone. There is a boy whose fate is bound with hers. Together, they will change everything.”

What word in the prophecy tells they are likely to eventually meet?
Remember to use evidence to help you answer (PEE).

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

Meet Will Parry: the boy whose fate is bound with Lyra's
What precise evidence is there that Will may be from a different world than Lyra's?

The alethiometer has told Lyra there exists something in the next village which she must find.
lorek (the armoured bear) has offered to take her but she must get permission from Lord Faa

She turned and ran back through the snow.

“Lord Faa! If lorek Byrnison takes me over the ridge to the village, we can find out whatever it is, and then catch the sledges up further on. He knows the route,” she urged. “And I wouldn’t ask, except it’s like what I did before, Farder Coram, you remember, with that chameleon? I didn’t understand it then, but it was true, and we found out soon after. I got the same feeling now. I can’t understand properly what it’s saying, only I know it’s important. And lorek Byrnison knows the way, he says he could get there and back three times by next moonrise, and I couldn’t be safer than I’d be with him, could I? But he won’t go without he gets Lord Faa’s permission.”

There was a silence. Farder Coram sighed. John Faa was frowning, and his mouth inside the fur hood was set grimly.

But before he could speak, the aeronaut put in: “Lord Faa, if lorek Byrnison takes the little girl, she’ll be as safe as if she was here with us. All bears are true, but I’ve known lorek for years, and nothing under the sky will make him break his word. Give him the charge to take care of her and he’ll do it, make no mistake. As for speed, he can lope for hours without tiring.”

Find the precise evidence that	Evidence
Lyra was trying to persuade Lord Faa
lorek has the knowledge of how to get the village
It takes less than a day to go to and return to the village
John Faa disapproved of Lyra’s ideas
lorek is a totally honest bear lorek has huge stamina.

ANSWERS

She turned and ran back through the snow.

“Lord Faa! If lorek Byrnison takes me over the ridge to the village, we can find out whatever it is, and then catch the sledges up further on. He knows the route,” she urged. “And I wouldn’t ask, except it’s like what I did before, Farder Coram, you remember, with that chameleon? I didn’t understand it then, but it was true, and we found out soon after. I got the same feeling now. I can’t understand properly what it’s saying, only I know it’s important. And lorek Byrnison knows the way, he says he could get there and back three times by next moonrise, and I couldn’t be safer than I’d be with him, could I? But he won’t go without he gets Lord Faa’s permission.”

There was a silence. Farder Coram sighed. John Faa was frowning, and his mouth inside the fur hood was set grimly.

But before he could speak, the aeronaut put in: “Lord Faa, if lorek Byrnison takes the little girl, she’ll be as safe as if she was here with us. All bears are true, but I’ve known lorek for years, and nothing under the sky will make him break his word. Give him the charge to take care of her and he’ll do it, make no mistake. As for speed, he can lope for hours without tiring.”

Find the precise evidence that	Evidence
Lyra was trying to persuade Lord Faa	She urged him
lorek has the knowledge of how to get the village	He knows the route
It takes less than a day to go to and return to the village	He could get there and back 3 times by next moonrise
John Faa disapproved of Lyra’s ideas	John Faa was frowning
lorek is a totally honest bear	Nothing under the sky will make him break his word
lorek has huge stamina.	lorek can lope for hours without tiring

Lyra finds one of the boys whose Daemon has been cut away.Decide if the following are true or false and give precise evidence

“Come on,” she called in a trembling voice. “Tony, come out. We’re going to take you somewhere safe.”

There was a stir of movement in the fish house, and he appeared at the door, still clutching his dried fish. He was dressed in warm enough garments, a thickly padded and quilted coal-silk anorak and fur boots, but they had a secondhand look and didn’t fit well. In the wider light outside that came from the faint trails of the Aurora and the snow-covered ground he looked more lost and piteous even than he had at first, crouching in the lantern light by the fish racks.

The villager who’d brought the lantern had retreated a few yards, and called down to them. lorek Byrnison interpreted: “He says you must pay for that fish.”

Lyra felt like telling the bear to kill him, but she said, “We’re taking the child away for them. They can afford to give one fish to pay for that.”

The bear spoke. The man muttered, but didn’t argue. Lyra set his lantern down in the snow and took the half-boy’s hand to guide him to the bear. He came helplessly, showing no surprise and no fear at the great white beast standing so close, and when Lyra helped him to sit on lorek’s back, all he said was:

“I dunno where my Ratter is.”

“No, nor do we, Tony,” she said. “But we’ll...we’ll punish the Gobblers. We’ll do that, I promise. lorek, is it all right if I sit up there too?”

“My armour weighs far more than children,” he said.

So she scrambled up behind Tony and made him cling to the long stiff fur, and Pantalaimon sat inside her hood, warm and close and full of pity.

Statement	True or False	Evidence
Lyra was nervous when she called out to Tony
The boy was probably wearing his own clothes
The villager was slightly nervous of the boy
The villager was completely happy with Lyra’s response to his request for payment
The boy might be in shock
Lyra was concerned the boy may fall off the boy
Lyra’s daemon felt sorry for Toney

What might have happened to Lyra?

---

Use the pictures to help you to justify your answer with evidence.

2

3

4

1

